fication of his revelation.

The gray-baired father-in-law of Peter Mortensen's victim had but little to say regarding the verdict in the famous trial. He heard it only yesterday morning, having spent the past three or four days out of town. When it was made known to him, he expressed no surprise, nor was he elated, so far as his appearance was consequenced a nack stand on the corner of Main and. Second South streets. It was about a year after he started his hack line that Callahan, a miner from Colorado, drove from Lottie Minor's resort on Franklin avenue, to the road house with Josie Hill, one of the inmates of the place. They were driving in a buggy, and as they reacher Ninth South and State streets. so far as his appearance was con-cerned. In answer to a request for some expression regarding the verdict,

"I am glad it is over; glad to be re-lleved of a strain that has pulled me down. I have been dragged through the case for months and am heartily weary of it.

"My personal feelings, I believe, are very well known, and I do not care to discuss them. This much I can say: I have no malice or animous towards any man. So far as I am concerned, Peter Mortensen might live to be as old as Methuselah. There is a judgment higher than any on earth that all men

Justice Has Been Rendered. I am thankful to Mr. Eichnor for his excellent, gentlemanly and fair one of the most widely known hackmanagement of the case, and to the jury. I believe in justice. I wanted only justice. I believe justice has been Do you consider the result a verifi-
